Of Counsel at Butler, Sean P. Ravenel specializes in Large Loss Subrogation and Self-Insured Recovery. He brings his knowledge and experience to many types of cases, including material failures, hurricane losses, heavy equipment claims, trucking, product liability, and construction defect. He is adept at handling complex multi-party subrogation matters.

Sean's prior work experience includes service in the United States Marine Corps and working with the U.S. Department of State. Sean also served as an intern at the Florida Supreme Court while attending law school.

Sean practices primarily in Florida. However, beyond the state of Florida, Sean also handles losses and claims across the country, including in the mid-Atlantic, Midwest, Northeast, and other parts of the Southeast.

Sean regularly gives presentations on subrogation and recovery topics, such as investigation techniques and litigation strategies. He speaks to various industry professionals, sharing his valuable knowledge and insights gained from working extensively in this specialization.

He is also the author of several articles published by the National Association of Subrogation Professionals, The Federal Lawyer, and the Florida Bar News. His pieces address a diverse range of topics from professionalism in legal education to changes to the laws impacting recovery in various jurisdictions.
